ACADEMIC PROJECT

M.E. Project : Comparison of geopolymer & Ferrocement mortar with varying volume percentage and Specific surface of mesh

Abstract: Geopolymer is a new development in the world of mortar in which cement is totally replaced by fly ash and activated by alkaline solutions to act as a binder in the concrete mix. Experimental investigation has been carried out to study the effect of different % of steel mesh on compressive strength and split tensile strength of geopolymer and Ferrocement. Test results show that compressive strength and split tensile strength of geopolymer mortar increases with increase in volume % (V_r) & specific surface of steel mesh as compare to Ferrocement
